Made In Bombay

Made In Bombay is a funky fast food restaurant that serves up Indian vegan food with a hip, urban twist. Owners Shiv and Shikha had no restaurant experience before following their dreams and opening their restaurant. With lines out the door, their dreams are coming true.

Shiv:

Shiv personifies the modern entrepreneur: tall, good looking, well spoken, well educated and well rounded. He can't be pinned down, put in a box or live nine-to-five. He left a job in micro-finance to tour in a rock band, quit the band for a job on Wall Street, then quit that to follow his dream of opening a restaurant. He's the perfect mix of Manhattan and Mumbai. In the division of labour at the restaurant, Shiv is definitely the business side of the operation.

Shikha:

This Bollywood actress is the creative side to the restaurant. The look, layout, logo and design are all hers. More importantly, so is the entire inspiration behind the menu. Shikha comes from a long line of devout vegans and the cuisine is a reflection of her beliefs. A big part of what she wants to do is educate people about vegan cooking without preaching it. Your taste buds will do the talking. So why the potato chips and grilled cheese? Well, you've got to give a little in every relationship.
