Recette

Recette is the first of two trendy Manhattan restaurants run by Jesse & Lindsay Schenker. Jesse studied cuisine formally and worked under Michelin star chefs like Gordon Ramsay and Bobby Flay. He and Lindsay have known each other since high school and now, with their two restaurants and two young children, have their hands full.

Jesse:

Jesse's personal story is remarkable in its own right. After struggling with addiction and hitting rock bottom, he vowed to turn his life around. He turned to food. Having cooked at home with his mother and grandmother, food and family were grounding constructive place to build from. He earned a two star review from the New York Times and was featured in Forbes 30 Under 30 as one of the city's hottest young chefs. He's recently published a book and counsils others on overcoming their addiction.

Lindsay:

Lindsay worked her share of restaurants waiting and bussing tables – but nothing prepared her for managing two of New York's hottest spots with her husband. After getting their two young children situated in the morning, she heads to the restaurant to manage the books and the staff.
